John Roach had but one hobby—his family. The hobby of the administration is to crush that family.

It is said that there have been 500,000,000 trees planted in Nebraska. To a reflecting man, this tree story beats any fish story that has ever been told.

The official axe is still at work in Washington, and last week more than 200 persons took their place "in the innumerable caravan of offensive partisans."

The city of Philadelphia, through its union league, proposes to purchase the old log-house in which General Grant was born, located at Mt. Pleasant, Ohio, and re-erect it in Fairmount Park, in that city.

Mr. Clinton Babbitt, secretary of the state agricultural society, has invited General John A. Logan and Governor Oglesby to attend the coming state fair, and there is every reason to believe that they will accept the invitation.

Mrs. Langtry is playing her last card for notoriety. She has got up a tight between Lord Lonsdale and Sir George Chetwynd as to which shall receive the most attention from her. This is one of the schemes of the fading Lilly to keep her name before the public. If she can't acquire fame she is perfectly willing to get notoriety even at the expense of courting two donkeys like Lonsdale and Chetwynd.

Some time ago the Gazette took occasion to say a good word for the Chicago Manual training school. The institution now has 146 pupils, and is giving satisfaction. The director of the school is of the opinion that the apprentice system will never be revived, it having been demonstrated that it is better a pupil should be taught by a skilled mechanic who is a skilled teacher than by a skilled mechanic who is not a skilled teacher.

There is something strikingly appropriate in this dispatch received by Colonel Fred Grant:

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 25.—Col. Grant: I wish your father could be buried by the side of Abraham Lincoln. Their fame can never be separated, and loyal hearts would be glad to have them as near in death as they were in life.
W. S. OLIVER.

There are stronger reasons why General Grant should be buried by the side of Lincoln and in his own state than in a pleasure ground which is hardly anything else than an immense beer garden.

Of the 387,821 immigrants who arrived in the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1885, 48,178 came from England and Wales, 51,667 from Ireland, 9,194 from Scotland, 123,253 from Germany, 11,164 from Austria, 35,000 from Canada, 21,884 from Sweden, 12,181 from Norway, and 13,587 from Italy. The arrivals for last year were only about one-half as many as in 1882, and there has been a decided decrease every year during the past four years.

The directors of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, at a meeting in Burlington yesterday, decided to build to St. Paul, and for that purpose voted to offer shareholders 7,000,000 of $10,000,000 of bonds and stocks of a new road to St. Paul, to be called the Chicago, Burlington & Northern. The bonds will be 5 per cents. The Chicago Burlington & Quincy guarantees 50 per cent of the earnings, and a minimum of $100,000 per year as a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds.

Lieutenant Howard L. Smith, of the New York Independent, does a good piece of work in refreshing the memory of certain writers, who have lately held that the colored people were deteriorating, by calling their attention to the census report of 1880, which, among other things creditable to these people, shows that there were then in the country 18,482 institutions of learning devoted solely to the education of colored youth, the teachers of which were annually paid no less a sum than $8,349,000.

On Saturday night a box was shipped from Black River Falls to Chicago, and a dispatch from Elroy to the Milwaukee Sentinel says the messenger became suspicious of the contents, and telegraphed to Officer Riley, at Elroy, to be on hand, and on the arrival of the train there the box was opened and a man was found inside, armed with a 38 calibre revolver, a billy, razor, bottle of chloroform and a bunch of cord. He refuses to give his name. The box was shipped to Sidney L. Barnard, Chicago. Two more persons, supposed to be confederates, were arrested there, Sunday morning. All three are in jail. It is supposed that they have cleverly planned to rob the mail and express car, and the disclosures have caused much alarm.

The present method of transporting tea from Yokohama to Chicago, St. Paul and New York shows what competition is doing in the way of lessening the cost of transportation. The bark Isabel will soon arrive in San Francisco with two thousand tons of tea consigned to persons in Chicago, New York and St. Paul. It is estimated that the tea will load ten tons to the car, which will necessitate the use of 200 cars. These will be run in special air-brake trains of twenty cars each, making ten trains in all. The trains will be run through as special, and on a time-card prepared especially for them. The time to be consumed will be something less than 175 hours. The rate made by the Northern Pacific for this special shipment is $1.75 per 100 from Yokohama to New York. The ordinary rate by steamer from Yokohama to New York varies from $3 to $5, according to season. By sailing vessels the rate is about $2.25, but it also varies.

There does not seem to be any hope for prohibition in Iowa, although the state has a prohibitory law. Instead of treating the law as a sober fact, it is looked upon as a farce. The returns of the internal revenue department show that there are 3,989 retail dealers in liquor in that state, 63 wholesale dealers, 16 rectifiers, and 275 other dealers, making a total of 4,343, or 280 more than there are in the state of Missouri, where there is a high-license law. Iowa produced in the last fiscal year, ending June 30, 2,500,000 gallons distilled spirits and 3,397,000 gallons of beer. This is about three gallons of home-made Iowa liquor to every man, woman and child in the state, to say nothing of the quality of imported stuff consumed. The Dubuque Herald of last Saturday published reports from 105 places in Iowa, covering the ninety-nine counties, as to the result of the first year's trial of the prohibitory law. The Herald sums up: "The general verdict is that it is a failure, not prohibiting and not producing temperance. In the larger places the saloons are running openly. In the small towns they have been closed, but liquor is sold on the sly, so that in both classes the reports show that drunkenness has in general not increased. In some it has increased. Taxation is higher in most towns to provide for the revenue formerly obtained from licenses. The sentiment in favor of repeal is increasing. The reports show that the people throughout the state generally favor a $500 license as a substitute for prohibition. Some favor a higher figure and some lower, but the majority unite on that."

Considerable discussion has been going on at different times for several years in regard to pensioning all soldiers of the late civil war now living; and this proposition met with determined opposition from many quarters on the alleged ground that such a scheme would cost hundreds of millions and crippled the treasury. The war department recently compiled some facts showing that the actual enlistments from all the states during the war were in the aggregate 2,282,000. Some 335,000 of these were either killed or died in the service. To show that the list of pensioners under the proposition of the national association of the Grand Army of the Republic, would not be as large as many suppose, the Madison Democrat says that the evidence that the ranks of the old soldiers are rapidly thinning out is shown in many ways "and the census now being taken in this state will astonish even the most careful observer. In the city of Milwaukee, with 115,363 inhabitants, only 1,208 old soldiers were in the city. Madison, with 12,050 inhabitants, only 232 old soldiers were found. This city shows a much larger proportion, owing to the fact that a good many are given places around the capitol. The average for the state estimated on this city would be 30,000, but estimated on Milwaukee city it would not much exceed 13,000. In the state of Wisconsin not 25,000 will now be found—perhaps not 20,000. The state furnished not counting re-enlistments, 80,595, of which number 11,000 were killed or died in the service, 54,000 returned to the state and were mustered out, and 15,193 were discharged. So it appears that about 70,000 came home." Out of a population in Janesville of 10,000, not more than 175 old soldiers will be found, judging from the census so far taken. The Democrat seems to think that there will not be more than 20,000 old soldiers in all the state, and certainly not to exceed 25,000. These facts show how wonderfully is the keen sickle of death thinning the ranks of the old soldiers.

Johnstown.

—The past week has been very bad for securing hay in good condition as the showers came too near together. However the haying season is nearly over and most of it well secured.

—Several of the farmers have started the binders in the barley and to get ready, oiled up for earnest work this week. Barley is looking well and has the appearance of being quite too warm for ten days to secure a plump berry, yet this cool weather will be of great benefit.

—The frequent showers are of great benefit to the tobacco and most of it is looking finely. There was difficulty in procuring suitable plants at the right time for setting, and this season a great many small ones have been set, and consequently the fields do not show as even growth as in former years. However, it is looking well, and bids fair for a bountiful harvest.

—We can't speak with much faith of wheat and oats until we get the threshing test, although they are looking well now. Wheat and oats have been very uncertain crops in this vicinity for several years, and but little of it is sown. Thirty and forty years ago, every farm, at this season of the year, was covered with wheat, while at this time, stock of different kinds takes the place; some are raising horses, some cattle, some sheep and some, hogs.

—Henry Cutter has just brought in two car loads of cattle which makes him between four and five hundred head.

—T. H. Austin and John Zuill have got new mowers that cut six feet wide, and their large hay fields have come down with a rush.

—Two large loads of cheese left the factory on Saturday for market, to be shipped from Whitewater.

—J. C. Light who is traveling for Felix Marston & Blair, of Chicago, was found at home over Sunday.

—The man who settled in this town forty years ago, and is here yet, who never was in Janesville and never saw it only as he looked down from Mt. Zion where he was at work.

—Next Sabbath the Rev. D. B. Jackson preaches a sermon to young men at the Congregational church.

—Geo. McFarlane and Wm. Sheridan commenced their harvest with the new Osborne Steel binder and harvester which took the five hundred dollar prize in England at the trial there.

—Last Saturday was the last day for sowing turnip seed, but I think I think I would try a little the fore part of this week.

—The woodchucks or ground hogs are getting very penty in our meadows and should be asked to leave.

—Corn is very forward for the season and many pieces are silked out. We are looking for a large yield.

BOSTON'S MYSTERY.

A Frightful Crime That the Police Are at Their Wits End About—Lynchings at Mound City, Ills., and Douglasville, Ga.

BOSTON, July 27.—A dozen detectives have been hard at work upon the Charles river murder mystery. The doctors now say that the victim had been delivered of a child shortly before her death by strangling. They are unable to state definitely whether there had previously been criminal malpractice. The remains have been identified very positively by perhaps twenty-five persons who were sure the body was that of one of four or five persons who were supposed to be temporarily missing. None of the identifications have proved correct. Aside from the various identifications, the police are beginning to receive reports from persons who claim to have seen individuals throw bags into the river at several points within a few days. These hints are also being thoroughly investigated. Capt. Gould, of the harbor police, says it is improbable that the two bags containing parts of the body of the murdered woman could have been thrown overboard at the same place.

Sunday afternoon the legs of the murdered woman were found floating off one of the East Boston ferry slips, and now the corpse in its entirety awaits identification. There have been several more false identifications, and the police and the reporters are at work on another claw, which has so far withstood all tests. The woman missing in this case is Rose Gilbert, married, who formerly lived in Charlestown. The opinion is growing that the dead woman belonged in higher circles than was at first supposed. The delicate hands and feet and the finely-formed nose giver color to this belief. It is certain that the body was cut in pieces, not for the purpose of mutilation, but to aid in carrying it to the water-side, and it is also very likely that the woman's proper clothing was thrown away and the cheaper clothes put with the body with the idea of sending the police upon a false scent. The Sunday newspapers print a good deal about the carpet in which the thighs were wrapped, but its chief value to the police lies in its peculiar shape, which shows that it has been in a room which can be easily identified when found. All efforts to trace the sack which inclosed the trunk have so far failed.

Horrible Affair in Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 27.—In the small village of Douglasville, twenty-five miles from here, was enacted Friday night at midnight a thrilling tragedy. At that hour 300 men from all over the county took from the jail Peter Stamps, a negro, after having overpowered the sheriff's posse which stood guard, and swung him from the bridge on the Georgia Pacific road, in the heart of the town. In Douglasville lives Marion Abercrombie, a wealthy farmer and successful merchant, with an only daughter, Ida, age 13. The negro Stamps was one of his farm hands. A short time ago the suspicions of the child's mother were aroused, and on being questioned the child stated that Stamps had taken improper liberties with her seven months before, and had continued to do so up to the last few days. She did not seem to realize that anything wrong had occurred, but it seems had a conference, with the negro, who after ascertaining her condition persuaded her to take arsenic, which she did. That night she awoke her father, and after crying "I am going to leave you; I am going to die," dropped back on her pillow dead.

Eight hundred men, armed with shot-guns, but slightly disguised, gathered, Sunday night, and moved toward the jail, but before they reached it they were met by a runner who told them the sheriff had taken the prisoner out of the jail and started to Carrollton. This set the mob wild, and they swore they would have the negro's blood or the sheriff's. They soon took him eight miles out of town, and, overpowering him, started back with the prisoner. When the negro realized that his fate was sealed he begged to be killed at once and cried. He swore his innocence and admitted his guilt all in one breath.

Judge Lynch in Illinois.

CAIRO, Ills., July 27.—The man Maupin, who killed his son-in-law, Daniels, at Mounds Junction, Wednesday, was lynched by a mob at Mound City at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. At midnight a posse of masked men on horseback approached the city from the direction of Villa Ridge and Mounds Junction, and hitching their horses to trees, proceeded to the jail. Sheriff Crane was in charge, assisted by four deputies. A demand for keys being refused, the doors, three in number, were broken down with sledge hammers, until the cage was reached. The murderer was found upon his cot. A hangman's knot was thrown around his neck, the end of the rope was seized by many hands, and the man was dragged out over the rough roads beyond the levee, until the first tree was reached. Several shots were then fired into the murderer's body, all taking effect, and either being fatal. He was then drawn up, but was probably dead before he was raised from the ground. The victim maintained perfect silence from the first. The deed was done so quietly that the citizens were not aroused until the affair was over.

Was He a Train Robber?

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 27.—Word has reached here that Saturday the express messenger on the Omaha train noticed a long black box put aboard his car at Black River Falls, Wis. He suspected it contained the body of a man or some other illegitimate freight, and kept a close watch upon it. It had holes in the top and a large spike was driven into one end, partially sticking out, the box being set up on that end. He telegraphed to Elroy, and six men were sent to investigate. On beginning to open the box the form of a man was found dressed simply in his underclothing. He spoke, and requested not to be hurt. They asked if he had weapons and he said he had. They held him down and proceeded to open the box. Under him was a suit of outer clothing, six revolvers, a bottle of acid, and a bottle of chloroform. He was bound, taken to Eau Claire, and locked up. Nobody yet knows more of the circumstances, but it is thought to have been a bold attempt to rob the express company.

RUSHING WATERS.

A DISASTROUS CLOUD-BURST DEVASTATES A VALLEY.

Fears That Many People Have Perished, —Great Damage to Property—Denver Flooded—A Railway Horror with Several Victims.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 27.—One of the most disastrous cloud-bursts ever known in this section of the state struck a point a few miles north of this city Saturday midnight. But for the fact that the storm struck the crest of a hill, where the water flowed in opposite directions, the loss of life must have been appalling. Several railroad and wagon bridges in the vicinity were carried away and a large amount of track swept out. The house of B. A. P. Caten, superintendent of schools, in the northern part of the city, was lifted from the foundation and carried down the stream with great velocity. In the house at the time were Mr. and Mrs. Eaton, who had just retired for the night. As soon as the former realized the situation he jumped from a door of the floating dwelling, instructing his wife to do the same. After a hard struggle he succeeded in reaching a place of safety. Instead of jumping the wife clung to the house, which struck the Denver & New Orleans railroad bridge, 100 yards below, and was dashed to pieces. Diligent search failed to discover any trace of Mrs. Eaton's body.

Later reports from the luckless valley, north of the town, indicate that the devastation and loss of life were greater than first supposed. On the slopes of Shook's run were a number of summer campers. Many of their tents have been seen floating in the stream; and, as the flood came down in the dead of night, it is feared many have perished. One body, that of a Swede-woman, is reported found several miles below the town. News from Shooks' run is awaited with intense anxiety.

Three People Lose Their Lives and Several Injured.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 27.—A passenger train on the Georgia Pacific railroad fell through a trestle at Muscatine station Sunday. Mark Smith, train hand, and William Berry, the engineer, were fatally injured, and two men had their legs broken. One passenger is missing. He is supposed to be under the wreck. It is learned that besides those mentioned six persons were injured but it is not known how seriously as but meagre details have been received.

A Flood at Denver.

DENVER, July 27.—The heaviest flood ever known in Cherry creek came down at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. The Denver & New Orleans bridge at Wewatta street, which had been weighted with a train of loaded coal-cars, was carried away, and the Broadway, Curtis, and Holliday street bridges were slightly damaged, but there was no loss of life. The damage will not exceed a few thousand dollars.

A Notice to the South Pennsylvania Company That Means Business.

BALTIMORE, July 27.—The following notice has been telegraphed by the Western Maryland Railroad company to the president of the South Pennsylvania Railroad company, and H. McK. Twombly, and copies will be sent to President Roberts, of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. President Klein, of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad company, and Dr. Hostetter, of the syndicate, under whose auspices the South Pennsylvania railroad is being built:

It having come to the notice of this company that an arrangement is about to be made between the South Pennsylvania Railroad company and the Pennsylvania Railroad company whereby the building of the South Pennsylvania is to be abandoned, I would remind you of the contract dated Feb. 12, 1883, between the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad company, the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company, the Pittsburg, McKeesport & Youghegheny Railroad company, the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Railroad company, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad company, the South Pennsylvania Railroad and the Western Maryland Railroad companies by which the South Pennsylvania Railroad company has undertaken to build a line of railroad between Harrisburg and Pittsburg, with a connecting link with the Western Maryland railroad, and ask that you give notice to the Pennsylvania Railroad company of the existence of such a contract, and the obligations it imposes on the South Pennsylvania Railroad company. Also of the obligations under this contract which this company have assumed, and which it may call upon at any time to perform. This company estimates that the provisions of this contract are worth millions of dollars to this road; therefore this company will claim all its rights under this contract, and I will so notify the Pennsylvania Railroad company.

(Signed) J. M. HOOD,
President Western Maryland Railroad Company.

The Hanover Junction, Hanover & Gettysburg Railroad company, which also has a contract with the South Pennsylvania company, has been advised to enter its protest against the proposed action on the part of the South Pennsylvania Railroad company.

Speeding the Wheel.

CHICAGO, July 27.—There were a number of bicycle races at the Base Ball park Saturday afternoon, in which local talent did some pretty good work. The chief interest was centered, however, in the professional races. Asa Dolph, with ten yards start, beat John S. Prince in the mile in 3:07¼. Prince was so close at the finish that no one but the judges know who was the winner. George Weber won the 15-mile L. A. W. championship race in 51:13. The 10-mile professional was taken by Brooks in 32:49, Nelson second, Prince third, Woodside fourth. The 5-mile professional was won by Woodside in 15:27¾. Prince second, Brooks third. The track was heavy.

A Great Cotton Crop in Texas.

HOUSTON, Tex., July 27.—The Post publishes a carefully prepared report of the condition of the crops in the great cotton growing region of Texas. There was too much rain early in the month, but the weather since has been dry, hot and favorable, relieved by showers at intervals of two weeks or more. The cotton worm has not appeared except in one or two localities. The stands have improved this month and are good. The present good condition is unprecedented, surpassing the great crop season of 1883, when nearly 2,000,000 bales were harvested.

Choked by Her False Teeth.

SLATESVILLE, N. C., July 27.—Miss Margaret Mills, of this city, died, Saturday night, under most singular circumstances. The family heard her making peculiar noises, and entering her room, found her in a death struggle. Her false teeth had fallen into her throat, and by the time they were removed she was dead, having died from strangulation.

GUARDING THE DEAD.

THE OLD COMMANDER'S COMRADES KEEP WATCH AND WARD

Other Reminiscences of the Old Hero—His Coolness in the Face of Danger—Rabbi Browne's Tribute—Preparations for the Funeral—A G. A. R. Monument.

MT. MCGREGOR, N. Y., July 27.—There were a number of arrivals at the mountain Sunday. Among them were Gen. Horace Porter and the Japanese minister, Kuki. The guard of honor from U. S. Grant post, G. A. R., of Brooklyn, arrived, and began their duties at once. Two of them attended constantly inside the cottage. The new detail comprises one of Sheridan's scouts, and the man who was sergeant of the guard that carried Lincoln from Ford's theatre to the house in which he died. Commander, McNair, of Saratoga, has loaned to Comrade Downing, of Wheeler post, a piece of crape which was worn at the funerals of Lincoln, Farragut and Garfield. It has been put on Mr. Downing's sword. The Wheeler post, which came to the cottage first, remains and patrols the cottage on every side. Grand Army veterans representing Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, New York, Michigan and New Mexico are camped on the mountain.

Gen. Hancock has ordered a company of infantry from Fort Porter, near Buffalo, to come to the mountain to act as part of the guard of honor.

Gen. Porter was shown the plaster mask of the dead general, which was made soon after he died. He examined it closely, and expressed himself well pleased with it. A message has been received from Albert, the White House coachman, who wishes to drive the hearse. It is as follows:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON—To HORACE PORTER: As the dear general's old coachman for years, can you not aid in arranging that I should drive for him for the last time at the funeral? I want to do something in his honor, and would like to do that. [Signed.] ALBERT HAWKINS.

Gen. Porter spoke of Albert's devotion to the general, and said he had no doubt the family would grant his request.

Col. Grant started for New York Sunday night with Gen. Horace Porter. He will meet Gen. Hancock and Mayor Grace and settle with them the arrangements for the public ceremonies, which will date from the afternoon of Aug. 4, when the body will leave the hill. It is the intention that until that time full control shall rest with the family. The services here will be comparatively of a domestic nature. They will include the regular church services and an address by the Rev. Dr. Newman. It is now intended that this address shall be the only extended one at any time delivered before the interment, as Dr. Newman thinks that, considering the military control of the ceremonies in New York, and the vast crowds that will go to the park on the day of the interment, addresses at that time will be useless. He expects to perform only the church service there.

Gen. Porter was the only newcomer who saw the body. He was surprised to find that the hair showed so little gray, and that the face was free from signs of suffering. The expression of the lips, as though about to speak, helped the natural look of the face, he thought.

Mrs. Grant is a great sufferer. She has not left her room since the morning of the death, and of course has not seen the body. She is so prostrated that the family will make no attempt to get her to look at the body until after Wednesday, when it will be placed in the casket. Mr. Honore, the brother of Col. Grant's wife, is here to do what may be asked of him. The Japanese minister brought formal condolences from the emperor of Japan.

Saratoga people are still anxious to have the body lie in state there. Gen. Hancock has telegraphed that he could not vary the order of the journey to New York already announced, and the remains will go direct to Albany.

President Cleveland and Gen. Sheridan have been asked to act as pall-bearers. President Cleveland was also requested to name the pall-bearers to act at the closing obsequies. He will attend to that matter.

Mayor Grace has telegraphed Mrs. Grant suggesting that the prominent height in Riverdale park, on the banks of the Hudson, be selected as the final resting place of the general's remains, but saying that he does not wish the suggestion to influence her in her decision, as he desires her to select the place from all those suggested as her own free choice. He added his earnest condolence and sympathy.

Another place suggested for the tomb is a commanding position near the mall in Central park. The mayor has assured Mrs. Grant that a proper place shall be prepared for the temporary reception of the remains, and arrangements will be made to have it guarded night and day until the body is placed under the monument to be erected.

In writing his book the general did not rely on his recollections for his facts. He had twenty or thirty large business ledgers filled with data. They were kept by his military secretary during the war, and contains in full his orders and dispatches, copied the day they were given or sent. One interesting relic is a manifold copy of the letter of terms which he wrote to Lee at Appomattox. It was difficult to obtain, and will correct an error about an important fact in history. It is an interesting fact that the paper shows that the retaining of side arms was not, as Gen. Badeau states in his history, an afterthought, and written between lines by Grant. There are alterations in the text, but not in that respect. The sales of the book are unprecedented. It is estimated that the profits for Mrs. Grant will reach $500,000.

It is now known that Gen. Grant left no will. The widow, however, will have undisputed disposition of his property. It is thought the complications growing out of the Ward failure impelled the general to forego the making of a will.

A Letter to Dr. Douglas.

MT. MCGREGOR, N. Y., July 27.—On Saturday Dr. Douglas gave to the press the following interesting letter, written by Gen. Grant July 2, in the doctor's presence, and addressed to him:

I ask you not to show this to any one, unless the physicians you consult with, until the end. Particularly, I want it kept from my family. If known to one man the papers will get it, and they (the family) will get it. It would only distress them almost beyond endurance to know it, and, by reflex, would distress me. I have not changed my mind materially since I wrote you before in the same strain; now, however, I know that I gain strength some days, but when I do go back it is beyond where I started to improve. I think the chances are very decidedly in favor of your being able to keep me alive until the change of weather toward winter. Of course there are contingencies that might arise at any time that might carry me off very suddenly. The most probable of these is choking. Under the circumstances life is not worth the living. I am very thankful [for thankful glad was written, but scratched out and thankful substituted,] to have been spared this long, because it has enabled me to practically complete the work in which I took so much interest. I can not stir up strength enough to review it and make additions and subtractions that would suggest themselves to me and are not likely to suggest themselves to any one else. Under the above circumstances I will be the happiest the most pain I can avoid. If there is to be any extraordinary cure, such as some people believe there is to be, it will develop itself. I would say, therefore, to you and your colleagues to make me as comfortable as you can. If it is within God's providence that I should go now, I am ready to obey His call without a murmur. I should prefer to go now to enduring my present suffering for a single day without hope of recovery. As I have stated, I am thankful for the providential extension of my time to enable me to continue my work. I am further thankful, and in a much greater degree thankful, because it has enabled me to see for myself the happy harmony which so suddenly sprang up between those engaged but a few short years ago in deadly conflict. It has been an inestimable blessing to me to hear the kind expressions toward me in person from all parts of our country; from people of all nationalities; of all religions and of no religion; of Confederates and of national troops alike; of soldiers' organizations; of mechanical, scientific, religious and other societies, embracing almost every citizen in the land. They have brought joy to my heart if they have not effected a cure. So to you and your colleagues I acknowledge my indebtedness for having brought me through the valley of the shadow of death to enable me to witness these times.

U. S. GRANT.

Mount McGregor, N. Y., July 2, 1885.

Dr. Douglas said in speaking of his connection with the case:

I was very frank with him when he first consulted me. I told him that he had a serious disease of an epithelial character, which, however, might sometimes be relieved. I did not, I think, use the word cure. He fully appreciated the serious character of his ailment, but not by the motion of a muscle or a tremor of the lip did he show that the information distressed him. He took the intelligence without flinching, as a brave soldier might an order to charge a battery when the chances of returning alive were vastly against him.

Dr. Douglas was visibly moved as he spoke of Gen. Grant's private character, and of him as a friend, he said: "I should say that he was a pure, honest man; trusting, courteous and honorable. I never prevaricated or sought to hide the truth from him in speaking to him about his disease. I could not deal otherwise than with the utmost frankness with such a man."

Nothing could exceed the thoroughness with which he had prepared to meet death. He seems to have thought of everything, and all that Col. Grant has to do as regards the incidental arrangements for the funeral is to follow out instructions as clearly and tersely worded as an order to an army. Gen. Grant also wrote many affectionate and tender notes to his family in general and to individual members. One of three or four pages, on which he had labored from time to time, was found sealed up in an envelope in his overcoat pocket after he had been dead some time. It was addressed to Mrs. Grant, and was filled with endearing expressions and touching words of consolation. Besides this he wrote a long letter to his family for their future guidance, urging them to mutual love and harmony.

REMINISCENCES OF THE WAR.

Gen. Horace Porter, in speaking of Gen. Grant Sunday, said: "I think that Gen. Grant was the readiest man in an emergency that I have ever known. As an instance, on the night of the second day of the Wilderness fight, when Sedgwick's corps had been broken and affairs were extremely critical, Gen. Grant sat in his headquarters and listened to fast coming reports of disaster and trouble and gave his orders with as much precision, coolness and judgment as though he had been studying that particular situation for two months.

"I never saw him angry but once, and that was when he saw a soldier clubbing a horse over the head. He seized the man and told him he was a brute and had him properly punished. I never heard him utter an oath. He was gifted with an endurance that the members of his staff called phenominal and which the world is now beginning to realize. I have known him to ride a day and a night through the mud and rain and come in with a freshness that put younger men to the blush.

"He was a man who never winked at the shriek of flying shells, or bullets, and the only one of two men I ever saw who would not involuntarily do so. The other was a bugler. Gen. Grant was another Rip Van Dunzl, a man of the people. It is said that with ten ripe years before him, such a man should be taken and I think the loss will be more appreciated by the people as time goes on."

Among the later messages received at the cottage are expressions of hearty sympathy from Gen. Beauregard, Count de Paris, Lord Fipon, Mrs. Mackey, Cyrus Bussing (of Des Moines, Iowa), Governors Oglesby and Robie, Rufus Ingalls (of Arkansas), President Diaz, Mrs. Frelinghuysen, and a number of societies of ex-Confederate soldiers.

It is stated that Gen. Grant received, at the time of the Grant-Ward failure, a number of delicate and sympathetic letters from ex-Confederates, one, which is believed to have been from Gen. Buckner, begging him to accept the loan, to be paid when he was able, of $10,000. The general's appointment on the retired list made it unnecessary for him to accept this, which was warmly acknowledged.

A Tribute from Israel.

NEW YORK, July 27—On Saturday Rabbi Browne preached before his congregation a sermon highly eulogistic of Gen. Grant, and declared that he had it from the general's own lips that the celebrated "order No. 11" was issued against his protest, and in obedience to orders from Washington City. At the conclusion of his sermon Rabbi Browne prayed for the departed soul, the whole congregation, by order of President Frey, rising and reciting with the rabbi the kadish.

"This is a prayer," said Rabbi Browne, "never recited for a non-Jew before."

"We say it only for our dead parents," said one of the officers, "and no rabbi ever bestowed such an honor upon a gentile."

Rabbi Browne and the congregation shed tears during the eulogy and prayer for the dead.

A Statue in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 27.—A movement is on foot to immediately raise funds with which to pay for a colossal statue of Gen. Grant, to be placed in Lincoln park. The start has been made by Mr. Potter Palmer, who, the very day the news of Gen. Grant's death was received, began to talk with individual members of the Lincoln park board, and finally pledged himself to give $5,000 towards a Grant monument fund of $40,000—the same amount that has been donated to the park for a Lincoln monument by the late Eli Bates, provided the board would give a suitable location and build the foundations. In an informal way the offer of Mr. Potter Palmer has been accepted, and it is about settled that the monument is to be placed in the concourse at the entrance of the Lake Shore drive into the park proper.

Vice President Hendricks.

ST. CLAIR SPRINGS, Mich., July 27.—Vice President Hendricks has added the following to the senate committee to attend Gen. Grant's funeral: Allison, of Iowa, Hawley of Connecticut, Cockrell of Missouri, Manderson of Nebraska, Ingalls of Kansas, and Camden of West Virginia. Saturday night Mr. Hendricks addressed 1,500 persons from this place and Port Huron, speaking touchingly of the nation's great loss in the death of Gen. Grant.

A Riot on the Scutchuon.

CINCINNATI, July 27.—In Covington, Ky., there was one man enough the day of Gen. Grant's death to say that he was "glad the old butcher was dead." There is considerable public indignation over the matter, and it is thought that the slanderer will find other localities more congenial.

Foreign Tributes.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Smalley, in his special from London says:

The tributes here paid to Gen. Grant are ample in scope and most admirable in tone. Nearly every journal in London and the provinces does justice to Gen. Grant's strength of character, courage and capacity. His mistakes as president are passed over lightly. His greatness as a soldier is more completely recognized than it was during his lifetime. The only exceptions are one or two irreconcilable partisans of the rebellion, who seize the occasion of Gen. Grant's death to reiterate the expression of blind admiration for the general whom he defeated. There runs through all the articles of an immense majority of the English press cordial sympathy with the cause the triumph of which Gen. Grant secured. The European press, one country excepted, pays homage to Gen. Grant's memory. The French press alone does not join in the homage and reprints Victor Hugo's invective. They denounce Gen. Grant for his sympathy for Germany in the Franco-Prussian war.

A meeting of American citizens in London resolved to ask the dean of Westminster for permission to hold memorial services in the abbey on the day of Grant's funeral, and the request was granted without a moment's hesitation. Rev. Phillips Brooks will probably conduct the service in part.

The Daily Telegraph prints a second eulogy of Gen. Grant. It says the willingness of the dean of Westminister to allow commemorative services to be held in Westminister Abbey gives universal satisfaction. Gen. Grant's record is a great treasure to the American people and Englishmen may be permitted to share the admiration in which Americans held him.

CAPTURED A COWBOY.

CHICAGO, July 27.—Charles W. Everest, a cowboy desperado of Topeka, Kan., engaged in a lively duel on State street Sunday afternoon. Last Thursday he was arrested and fined for carrying concealed weapons. Sunday afternoon Officer Peter Loergel saw a man running north on State street, and at the same moment heard a shot and felt a sting in his side. Turning round he saw Everest, from whom the unknown man had evidently been fleeing, aiming point blank at him with a revolver. Everest, it seems, thought Loergel was the officer who had arrested him Thursday night, and intended to murder him on sight. The two men drew nearer each other, and both continued rapidly firing, until the officer had emptied one and the cowboy two revolvers. Then Everest turned and ran.

A crowd instantly gathered and would probably have mauled the cowboy, but the officer yelled, "Leave him to me," and pluckily brought him single handed to the Harrison Street station. Everest had two empty revolvers, a large box of cartridges and $150 on his person. The cowboy got a ball through his right knee, but the wound is not dangerous. The officer got a bullet through the fleshy part of his arm, but will be on duty again in a day or two.

Base Ball.

CHICAGO, July 27.—The League schedule still shows a small margin in favor of the Chicago club, but the New Yorkers are keeping so close that a very small amount of poor playing or bad luck on the part of the western boys will enable the eastern club to pull to the front. Following are the figures: Chicago—Games won 48, games lost 14; New York—won 47, lost 15; Providence—won 36, lost 22; Philadelphia—won 30, lost 32; St. Louis—won 22, lost 39; Boston—won 21, lost 40; Detroit—won 21, lost 40; Buffalo—won 19, lost 42.

The American association stands as follows: Athletics—Games won 31, games lost 35; Baltimore—won 25, lost 40; Brooklyn—won 24, lost 42; Cincinnati—won 42, lost 20; Louisville—won 38, loss 31; Metropolitans—won 22, loss 45; Pittsburg—won 10, lost 28; St. Louis—won 50, lost 19.

American association games Sunday: At Louisville—Cincinnati 4, Louisville 6; at St. Louis—Allegheny 1, St. Louis 5.

Took Him to Pieces and Sewed Him Up.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 27.—Dr. John B. Hamilton, supervising surgeon general of the marine hospital service, and one of the visiting surgeons at the Providence hospital, performed successfully a few days ago an operation which is said to have been only twice performed in the history of surgery. The patient was a young man who was recently shot in the abdomen at the Tremont house. The operation consisted in opening the cavity of the stomach and bowels and sewing eleven perforations in the young man's small intestines and two large perforations in the large intestine leading from the stomach. A large artery had been cut, and caused a hemorrhage which would have ended the young man's life in an hour or two. This was also closed up, and the young man is now convalescent.

Filled Out Her Own Marriage License.

WAYNESVILLE, N. S., July 27.—A very romantic elopement occurred near here last night at the small town of Webster. Miss Douglass, daughter of the register of deeds of Jackson county, attended a festival with a young man named Watts. They left the festival, presumably for home, at an early hour. Instead of going home, they drove to Sylva, several miles distant, where they were married. The girl is but 15 years old. She got the license by filling out the form herself in her father's office. The bridegroom is 20 years old.

The Death of El Mahdi.

CAIRO, July 27.—Maj. Chermside telegraphs that a spy has reported that Osman Digma received information that El Mahdi fell ill June 19 and died June 22. The spy reports that Osman Digma held a religious service of public lamentation over the prophet's death.

An Approved Verdict.

EATON, Ohio, July 27.—At a late hour Saturday night the jury in the case of Laura Eddins, charged with the murder of her husband, brought in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter. The decision of the jury seems to meet with general approval here.

Notes from the Race-Course.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Saturday's winners at Brighton Beach were: Mate, ¾ mile, 1:19½; Joe S., ¾ mile, 1:31½; Belle B., ¾ mile, 1:31; Nettie, 1⅛ miles, 2:15¾; King Fan, 1 mile, 1:41; Harry Mann, 1¼ miles, 2:02.

At Long Branch the following took the prizes: Richmond, ¾ mile, 1:15; Electric, ¾ mile, 1:16¾; Exit, 1¼ miles, 2:12¾; Lenox, 1⅝ miles, 2:25; Rica, 1 mile, 1:47, Tattler, 1 mile, 1:43¾; Aurelian, steeplechase, full course, 5:11.

The track at Saratoga was heavy. The following horses took the races: Conkling, 1 mile, 1:44; Ida Hope, 1¼ miles, 1:53; Boatman, 1⅝ miles, 2:52—heavy rain just before the start and track covered with mud; Rosiero, ¾ mile, 1:15¾; Maj. Pickett, steeplechase over short course, 4:51.

Sent the Leper to New York.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 27.—A few days ago two Chinamen called at the office of Dr. W. H. Crim. Upon being taken into the consultation-room one of them was found to have a puffed out and swollen face with a repulsive eruption on the arms, which was much discolored. A careful diagnosis, together with such information as Dr. Crim could gather from the Chinamen, convinced him that the man was suffering from leprosy. Dr. Crim called Saturday at the laundry where the diseased man was living, and found that upon the day of their visit to him the two Chinamen held a consultation with some of their countrymen, and that afterward the leper left for New York.

The Parnellites After John Bright.

LONDON, July 27.—The Irish party in the house of commons has resolved to call the attention of the house to an alleged breach of privilege on the part of John Bright, at the Spencer dinner on Friday evening. In his speech, Mr Bright is said to have fiercely denounced the Irish party as obscure friends of assassins. Mr. Phillip Callan has been deputed to bring the matter before the the house. Mr. Bright will no doubt vigorously defend his utterances at the banquet. A bitter fight is expected.

A Big Day at Antwerp.

ANTWERP, July 27.—The new Antwerp quay was formally opened Sunday by King Leopold. The day was observed as a grand public holiday. The sight presented by the gorgeous historic procession was a glorious one.

MAKING EDUCATION PRACTICAL.

Object Lessons for Common School Pupils—Sight-Seeing and Questioning.

[Boston In 1885.]

"We have made great studies in methods of teaching since I was a boy," said an old gentleman, a prominent educator. "Then it was books, books, books and gloomy schoolrooms. Discipline was always the first object in the teacher's mind. I have not forgotten, although I am a pretty old man, how I pined while in the school-room for the fresh air and changes of motion to refresh the eye and brain. Now all is changed. Object lessons have superseded book lessons. A school of fifty pupils is usually divided into three classes, with one teacher for each class. At 9 every morning, except Saturday and Sunday, the pupils meet at the school building and each of the three teachers gives a twenty minutes' lecture on the lessons of his class for the day previous, asking a question occasionally. Then each teacher starts out with his class for a day of sight-seeing and questioning and answering.

"One day a dry goods store is visited, the next a market, the next some kind of manufactory, and the next perhaps the country. Take a market, for instance. The prices of the meats and vegetables are asked for, the pupils are told where and how the meat is raised and slaughtered, and where the different vegetables are raised, what are their seasons in the different states and how they are brought to market. A return is made to the school-room about 2 p. m., and from then until 3 there will be an exercise in practical mathematics with say fifteen minutes for questions by the pupils about the lesson for the day. The mathematical problems consist of such as marketmen and persons buying meats and vegetables would naturally be called upon to solve in every-day experience. Subjects for short compositions are assigned to six or eight pupils each day. In this way spelling and the proper construction of sentences are learned.

"Text-books are made readable, and are not filled with knotty problems and rules to be committed to memory. A regular course of reading is mapped out by each teacher once a month, not to be memorized, but to be enjoyed. The mind is trained to think more than to remember. Whatever makes an impression on a child's mind is very apt to be remembered. I believe that the boys of fifty years ago got more useful information out of school than in school. In their sports they saw the practical workings of nature's laws, and they could appreciate them and remember them. A boy who has a large number of facts in his head that he has observed himself can easily deduce the laws which govern them. Let him see the facts, at any rate, before you try to teach him the principles which underlie them.

"To tell you all of the improvements that we have made in our school system would take me a week, but the rough outline I have given you will serve to show you, I think, that very great improvements have been made. First we strive to interest the pupils, and that interest is the stepping stone to instruction. The children get plenty of sunlight and fresh air, and when they leave school they are prepared to both buy and sell and to enjoy the results of their labors."

A Dude's Nerve and Money.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Soon after the boat left Vicksburg a young man in a swell suit brought out a pearl-handled revolver and began shooting at floating objects on the bosom of the mighty Mississippi. His object seemed to be to show off, and, as a knot of passengers began to applaud his shots, he grew what might be called triumphantly reckless. The steamer presently overtook a flatboat loaded with hoop poles, bound for the New Orleans market. The steersman, wearing a broam-brim hat and red shirt, was a very prominent figure.

"I've seen the day," remarked a passenger, "that I could put a bullet through that chap's hat and not harm a hair of his head."

"I can do it myself," replied the shooter.

"I doubt it, sir; doubt it very much. If you make that shot, you can call yourself the champion of the world."

What did the idiot do but haul off and pop away! We saw the man's hand go up to his ear, and it wasn't half a minute before his place was taken by a second man, and he was pulling off for us in a small boat. He was soon alongside, and not a man of us moved as he rushed up stairs with a bowie knife as long as the leg of a chair in his mad right hand. The shooter was whiter than chalk, but his sang froid was the genuine article. Before the man with the bleeding ear had come within ten feet of him he had a $50 bill out of his wallet and, taking a step forward, he held it out and said:

"Sorry to have troubled you, my dear sir. Intended to leave it for you at the next landing. I shot to break the pipe in your mouth, but hit your ear. This is my regular price when I make such blunders."

Red Shirt hesitated—took the bill—scanned the figures on the corner—slowly put up his knife, and then turned and left the steamer without having said one single word to one of us. The nerve and money of the dude had prevented that wicked knife from tasting life blood.

A Country Without Theatre or Circus.

[Washington Republican.]

Everybody on the island of Malta works and slaves at least sixteen hours a day, and he is fortunate, indeed, who counts his weekly stipend at $1.50. There never has been a theatre or a circus, or a secular holiday in Malta, and the popular amusement is confined to feast days, when the people congregate in one place and make themselves sick on pink candy. In the evening, when the hot, blistering sun goes down, you can go up to the basin, where the sea leaves a placid pool in the rocks and indulge in the giddy dissipations of a bath. You can live there in splendor for $5 a week, but at the end of four years you won't know whether you are a catamaran or a blind fish.

A FACE.

[Hattie Tyng Griswold.]

There was a face—I knew it once
In days when hope and I were young—
That had a subtle spell of power
That ever to my life has clung.
I sometimes see it in my dreams,
Robed in its witchcraft as of old,
And the same subtle sorcery,
Even in dreams, retains its hold.

I thrill again beneath the glance
Not seen, in truth, for longest years
And when it goes I sound again
The deepest deeps of soul-felt tears.
I wake in troubled ecstacy,
And long to close my eyes once more.
That face—for one more glimpse I'd give
The sweetest dream I have in store.

What was the charm within the face?
In vain you ask, I can not tell;
I only know it lured and lured,
And thrilled me with a magic spell.
I only know the eyes were dark,
And know that they were fathoms deep,
And that I followed where they led,
As I do now, even in sleep.

Where glows the fatal face to-day?
Is it casting still its subtle spell
O'er fresh young lives, and making them
Beneath its magic gloom to dwell?
To count life precious only as
'Tis passed beneath the melting gaze,
To sun themselves thus for a space
And then to go their different ways?

I know not—I do not wish to know;
But, if alive, I think the face
Is still the center of the throng,
Like an illuminated space.
Still bow the silent worshippers,
Still hover near the devotees,
And, were I there, 'tis vain to doubt
My feet would still be found with these.

THE NEW CLUB MEMBER.

[Brooklyn Eagle "Gossip."]

It is always amusing to note the young man who has just been elected a member of a good club and who starts in as a regular club man. Take him at an immature age and confer upon him the dignity of a club member, and he either becomes a loud boor or the most proper and reserved of men. As a rule he picks out some time-worn and blase club man for a model and apes him in everything. He assumes a stolid and indifferent air, sits as his model sits, eats as his model eats, and smokes the same brand of cigars that his model affects. He is slow, languid, but not lazy, and his attire is of the most fashionable cut.

Another sort of club member is the one who makes up his mind to feel perfectly at home at all hazards. He cultivates an easy and careless air. He learns the Christian names of all the members, jokes with the porters, sprawls over two or three chairs in the smoking-room, converses at the top of his lungs at dinner, and has his club printed on his visiting card more prominently than his own name.

The effect of club life on young men of all dispositions is good, however. The rough edges are soon worn off by the sharp comments of the older club men, and a raw youngster is turned into a polished man in less time at a good club than anywhere else on earth, except at West Point. It has always astonished me to observe the effect of military training upon the boys who go up the river to learn to be soldiers. The uncouth, clumsy and stumbling louts who enter the first class are turned out models of deportment at the end of the term, of whom even a Turveydrop might be proud.

Obnoxious Enthusiasm.

[Kate Field.]

It drives me wild to see grown-up people, accused of possessing common sense, touching a subject with kid gloves when they ought to roll up their sleeves and go in for hard work. This supineness brings many good ideas to naught. They are fed on promises and 5 o'clock teas. "I dare not 'waits upon' I would" in a manner to make Lady Macbeth use worse language than she did formerly. Want of earnestness is the cause of this torpidity. Society means chaff. Enthusiasm is as obnoxious as the plague. To be possessed of an idea which you are ready to defend with blood and treasure is to be a nuisance. You are worse than a criminal; you are a bore. To bore is to commit unpardonable sin. Let Stanley cross Africa and James Gordon Bennet tie the American flag to the north pole, and both will be feted after they've accomplished their self-appointed tasks, because society patronizes success in any form—but equator and north pole must not be mentioned in advance. Columbus may discover America, but he won't be invited to dine out or to sit for his photograph until he returns home alive. If he doesn't return it serves him right. Why wasn't he content with one hemisphere? Why not let well enough alone?

In my private opinion contentment is a swinish sentiment. To be satisfied is to wallow in stagnation. But I keep this belief to myself because I desire to live peaceably with my neighbors. Mind you, this criticism applies to what is called "society."

The Industries of Japan.

[Scientific American.]

The industries of Japan possess a particular interest to foreigners, on account of the unique materials employed and the dignity which old age bestows. At a time when England as a nation did not exist, when the progressive peoples of modern Europe were to the polite world as barbarians and strangers, these ancient people were patiently at work, by slow degrees perfecting the details of their art, until now they produce wares without a rival in the markets of the world, and to a large extent not capable of imitation elsewhere.

The origin of most of these industries, as has been seen, can be traced back to China or to Corea, but they have been so modified in the hands of the Japanese artisan that they now possess an eminently national character. Like the agriculture, the work is most entirely by hand. There are but few workshops of any size, most of the manufacturing being done on a small scale or even in the homes of the workmen. In a number of the industries, however, the division of labor has been carried out to a large extent. A peculiar feature of the social organization of Japanese manufactures is the descent of a trade from father to son. In the crystal factories this is particularly the case, and men there are doing exactly what their grandfathers did, only doing it a little better. And it is quite possible that their peculiar skill is due in a large measure to heredity, each generation making some little progress, and transmitting its accumulated acquisitions to the next.

The Fat Passengaire.

[New Orleans Times-Democrat.]

"Yes," says he, "when I sees a gent a comin' I sizes him up then and there. Ef he is old or fat I kinder slows up a bit, but if he is young, or looks like there's plenty of run and jump in him, why I just goes ahead, knowin' he's bound to make the landing. But them fat uns as lives high and ain't got no wind is the cussidest lot, 'cause I've got to come to a full stop and let 'em on, and what with makin' change, a turnin' of the brake and pullin' at a fool mule, I gets so hot and mad that by the time I gets to where nobody gets on, and I get out my tin bucket with my vituals in it, blow me if I kin eat a bite."

Every Meal is a Trial

To the dyspeptic. Flatulence, heartburn, oppressive fullness of the stomach, are the inevitable consequences of his use of the knife and fork. To say of him that he gratifies the cravings of appetite would be genuine satire. He only appeases them. Is relief attainable? Certainly, and by the use of a pleasant as well as thorough remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Will it cure immediately? Certainly not—it does not effect miracles. But it does give prompt and unspeakable relief, and will, if persisted in, produce an ultimate cure. Not only does it impart relish to the food, but promotes its conversion by the stomach into rich, health, and strength-sustaining blood. Supersensitiveness of the nerves, mental depression, and unquiet slumber, produced by interruption of the digestive functions, are also remedied by it. In Search of Sunken Wealth.

[Chicago Herald.]

An expedition will soon sail from Philadelphia for Vigo, Spain, in search of the Spanish treasure galleons sunk in the bay in 1702. An engineer who visited the spot last summer declares that he has positively located eleven of the sunken treasure galleons and, in a diver's suit, went down upon the decks of several of them, which were lying at the depth of thirty or forty feet below the surface. With a charge of dynamite he blew off the deck of one of them and laid bare the general cargo, which consisted of huge logs of mahogany and logwood in perfect preservation. He also picked up coins from the deck, and iron balls, mementoes of the sea fight 183 years ago.

A Connecticut Ornithologist.

A Connecticut sportsman recently shot a prize peacock belonging to one of his neighbors. He said he "thought it was a wild goose."

NOW IS THE TIME TO CURE SKIN HUMORS.
It is at this season when the Pores are clogged and the Blood and Perspiration are laden with Impurities and disfiguring Humors, Humiliating Eruptions, Itching Tortures, Salt Rheum or Eczema, Psoriasis, Tetter, Ringworm, Baby Humors, Scrofula, Scrofulous Sores, Abscesses, and discharging wounds, and every species of Itching, Scaly and Pimply Diseases of the Skin and Scalp, are most speedily and economically cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

IT IS A FACT.
Hundreds of letters in our possession (copies of which may be had by return mail) are our authority for the assertion that Skin, Scalp and Blood Humors, whether Scrofulous, Inherited or Contagious, may NOW be permanently cured by CUTICURA RESOLVENT the new Blood Purifier, internally, and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP, the great Skin Cures and Beautifiers, externally, in one half the time and expense of any other season.

GREATEST ON EARTH.
CUTICURA REMEDIES are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case Salt Rheum in this country. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe CUTICURA would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, internally, and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP, externally.
J. W. ADAMS, Newark, Ohio.

GREAT BLOOD MEDICINES.
The half has not been told as to the great curative powers of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I have paid hundreds of dollars for medicines to cure diseases of the blood and skin, and never found anything yet to equal the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

—An ill favored American citizen was in the municipal court this morning, charged with stealing a revolver from Mr. J. M. Smith. He kindly saved the city the expense of prosecuting him by pleading guilty, and was sentenced to six months confinement at hard labor.

—Mr. John Griffiths received a telegram this morning from Huron, Dakota stating that his brother James was dangerously sick. Mr. Griffiths made arrangements to leave for Dakota on the 12:30 train, but about noon he received a second dispatch, stating that his brother was better.

—Mrs. Mary Torrell died at her home on South Jackson street, fourth ward, at seven o'clock Sunday evening, of cancer in the stomach, aged 55 years. Deceased leaves a family of three children to mourn her death. The funeral will be held at St. Patrick's church to-morrow morning at nine o'clock.

—The American Lodge, Daughters of Rebecca, will have a picnic at Pope's Springs on Thursday, July 30th, all day and evening. The steamer Enterprise has been chartered and will make the first trip at nine o'clock in the morning, making regular trips during the day and evening. Particulars later.

—The important business before the common council this evening will be the ordinance to compell the railway companies to place a flagman at the High Jackson, Academy and Pleasant street crossings. The ordinance will come up in its regular order for its third reading. The knowing ones claim that it will pass the council.

—The Christ Episcopal church which has been closed for some time has been reopened and yesterday the usual services were held. The building has been much improved both inside and out by paint and frescoing and the Christ church people can now take comfort in having one of the neatest, most homelike places of worship in the city.

—Mr. Thomas Millington, of Ashton Spink county, Dakota, sends us a specimen of oats raised on his Dakota farm, this season, which is hard to excel in this section of country. In ninety days from the time the seed was sown the oats measured five feet two inches in height, the head being eighteen inches long, and well filled. It is an extra fine sample of oats.

—It would be a very good thing for the people to drape their houses and stores in mourning in honor of the dead hero, but many have neglected to do so. In memory of him whose name is on all tongues, whose deeds are known over the whole civilized world, and whose patient sufferings alone are enough to endear him to all people, let us hang out the emblems of mourning.

—The water in Rock river at this point raised some two feet or more on Saturday night. Sunday morning the water was very muddy, which could hardly be accounted for except that a heavy rain had visited the up river country. Late yesterday afternoon word reached the city that the mill dam at Catfish had been washed out, which if true, accounts for the sudden and unexpected rise in the river.

—A North River street citizen sends us a note for publication in which he requests the aldermen, when the procession moves along that street this evening to the council chamber, to halt by the side of the bank building long enough to inspect the filthy gutter at that point, and determine if the green slum there presented to the public gaze is conducive to the health of the city.

—Last evening was one of the most pleasant of the year. The oppressive heat of the day was coolly tempered by the gentle breeze from the northeast; the bright moon illuminating the surroundings made it pleasant and agreeable to be out of doors, many people taking advantage of the fine weather in strolling about the walks of the city, while others, more fortunate, were in buggies and carriages, driving around the city and country. It was a pleasant evening to be out.

—There are a number of prizes being offered in the city for shooting, probably the finest being the fine twenty-two calibre Winchester repeating rifle, offered by Kimball & Lowell. The conditions of the contest are not yet definitely known, but will probably be that the person breaking the most clay blackbirds out of a possible fifty takes away the gun. This weapon is a beauty and is well worth trying for. The shoot will take place on Bunker hill next Friday afternoon.

—The city hall and the west side engine house has been artistically draped in mourning in respect to General Grant, Assistant Engineer Horn and Foreman Spicer, of the Hook and Ladder company, being responsible for the excellent taste displayed. We understand it is their intention to place large initial letters, "U. S. G." made of evergreens trimmed with white and black, in the center of the main pillar of the building, when the work will be completed. The drapery at the east side engine house has not yet been completed, owing to the wind and rain storm of Saturday evening.

—The American Antiquarian, in one of the late numbers, gives diagrams of a number of mounds erected by Indians near the Lime City, which are supposed to be made in the likeness of turtles. It is now given out by the Beloit citizens that as the turtle was supposed to be very particular about his location, these mounds show conclusively that the Indians recognized that part of the country as very healthy and well favored for building purposes, and as they knew all the ins and outs of the affair, the judgment must still hold good. Whether this will have the anticipated result of drawing people to that sequestered spot is rather doubtful, but the scheme in itself shows commendable enterprise and the people of Rock county will await with interest any further developements.

—A heavy Chicago firm who packed and stored a large amount of tobacco in this city during the last season, will this week remove their property to their own city. The cause of this action is the raising of the rates of insurance, which, if the present tendency is followed will soon put an effectual embargo on all tobacco business in this vicinity. The insurance companies seem to be panic stricken and they are not only vieing with one another to see which can cancel policies and raise rates with the most rapidity, but every building which contains a case of tobacco is brought under the ban and made to suffer in the senseless conduct of the insurance companies. It should be one of the first duties of the new Business Men's organization to see if such costs and absurdities cannot be corrected.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF WISCONSIN
GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.
SPARTA, Wis. July 23, 1885.

Our distinguished comrade, Ulysses S. Grant, who, from Shiloh to Appomattox, led the Union soldiers to victory in a war for the integrity of the republic, and who, by his devoted performance of duty and heroic bearing, endeared himself to his comrades and was respected and revered by his fellow-citizens for his indomitable will and great military skill, as also for his sterling qualities as a true man; twice, after the close of the war elevated to the presidency of the nation he had done so much to save, who in his tour around the world received marks of respect and esteem from foreign nations such as have never been showered upon any other of America's great soldiers, is dead. To all soldiers of the Grand Army of the Union it comes with peculiar force, reviving the memories of the trying days of old, when amid the reverses and trials of soldier life then was when General Grant came upon the scene, a rift in the clouds, and triumph came where he led.

It is ordered that all posts in this department drape their flags, charters, and all their post rooms, and all comrades wear a suitable memorial badge on the lapel of the coat for a period of sixty days. All comrades are requested to abstain from labor, and meet at their post halls, or some public place, and conduct exercises appropriate to the occasion on the day of the funeral.

JAMES DAVIDSON, Commander.
PHIL. CHEEK, JR., Adjutant General.

In compliance with the above order there will be a special meeting of W. H. Sargent Post No. 20, Tuesday evening August 4th, 1885, to make final arrangements for the exercises on the day of the funeral August 8th. All comrades are requested to wear a mourning badge, which can be procured from the quartermaster, on and after next Wednesday. By order of E. S. HAYWARD,
Official. Post Commander.
R. J. CLEMONS, Adjutant.

Your Friends Will Never Tell You

but perhaps somebody, who isn't your friend, will, that your presence is rendered offensive by the foul, fetid smell of your breath. Every word you utter, though it be the very echo of wisdom and poetry, disgusts your hearers, and your laugh is productive of anything but mirth to them. It is a duty you owe, not only to yourself, but to society to remove the cause of the offense. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will heal the diseased mucus membrane, will bring relief to yourself and others. Do not hesitate to employ it.

"Say, Mister, where does Sol Tobias, the jeweler, keep?" "Reckon you must be a stranger here, if you don't know that Sol Tobias is the first jewelry store west of the bridge, on Milwaukee street." "Does he keep the Rockford and Columbia watches?" "You bet he does, and all others that are reliable. He is the only jeweler who does keep the Rockford and Columbia watches."

Opera House.

The Craig Comedy Company in the ever popular "Pink Dominoes," drew much approbation from their audience on Saturday night. This comedy is of course vastly differently from the other dramas which have been produced by this company, but they are as good in that line as in the more serious parts, keeping the audience in continual good humor. It is needless to particularize as all did finely, though Mr. Craig and Miss Courtney as Sir Percy Wagstaff and Lady Wagstaff did particularly well. Mr. Charles Eastwood gained much praise for his singing in the second act, praise which was certainly well bestowed as his imitation was rather better than the original given in this city.

Accidental Shooting.

Yesterday afternoon Charles Stack fell a victim to a carelessly handled revolver. About five o'clock in the afternoon five or six hired men were shooting at a mark on the farm of Mr. H. B. Phails, some distance south east of this city, and becoming tired of this amusement, lay down in the grass. One of the boys, young Stack's brother, was handling the pistol, and in some unaccountable manner the weapon was discharged, sending a thirty-two calibre bullet into the young man's hip. No arteries were severed, though he bled badly, but the ball took a downward direction and at last accounts has not been found. The severity of the wound is not known, but it is feared that the boy may not recover.

Prentice & Evenson distinctly state that Acker's English remedy has and does cure contracted consumption. Ask for circular. An entirely new medicine, guaranteed

MASTODONS CAUGHT

WITH A GRAPPLE, ON THE BOTTOMS OF SOUTHERN RIVERS.

For Fertilization, Not Science—Big Chunks Fished Up and Ground into Bits—An Insight into the Phosphate Business.

[New York Sun.]

"It's hot," said a cheerful gentleman in a down-town office, "but it isn't as bad as it was in South Carolina last Sunday. I was down there three days last week for mastodons in the bottom of the Ashley river. What do you think of that?" picking up a gigantic molar that weighed about eight pounds, and was grayish black in color and half petrified.

"How would you like to own a tooth like that and have it ache? If they did ache when they belonged to the mastodons, there must have been a fine howling down there in the swamps, for I've seen whole bushels of just such teeth taken out of the rivers, and there are tons of them there still. And it isn't mastodons alone that you find, but chunks of titanotheriums, dinocerases, tellosts, zeuglodons, hippurions, megalomeryxes—whenever you get enough, say when—charcopotamuses, peobrotheriums——"

"When?"

"Why, in the tertiary period. And if you dig a little deeper, I think you would find pterodactyl, megalosaurs, glyptodons——"

"When! When!

"Oh!"

"Are many persons engaged in these mines?"

"I should say so. There are four or five big companies, and ever so many little ones."

"All digging up mastodons?"

"Yes, sir; not for the sake of the mastodons, but for the phosphate that the mastodons are mixed up in. Bless you, they don't stop to pick out mastodons and piece them together. They throw the whole product into crushers and smash it up, and when it is ground it sells for from $6 to $15 a ton for fertilization. Many a farmer is spreading desiccated mastodons and archæopteryxes around his cornfield and potato patch—mastodons and archæopteryxes that were able—sleeping the stony sleep of centuries.

"This phosphate business is a new thing, but it's a big one. Why, sir, there are—let me see," and he pointed his nose at the middle of the ceiling and shut his eyes until he remembered that "there are 500,000 tons of those South Carolina phosphates dug up every year. The supply seems to be inexhaustible. At least they can go on at the present rate for twenty-five years more. Do you see that photograph? That's the gun that is used in catching mastodons."

The photograph showed something that looked like a wilted iron tulip dangling from the end of a stem of rods and chains. A man stood beside the tulip to show that its six iron petals were as long as he, and that before it was full blown he could easily have sat inside the bud had there been any way of getting in.

"That's a drop grappin. These phosphate beds stretch along the coast of North and South Carolina, and some of them are found in Alabama and Florida. They cover miles of low country, and are technically divided into 'land and river rock.' The 'land rock' is found on shore, and is mined by colored men with picks, and wheelbarrows, assisted by dipper dredges. The 'river rock' is a crust of phosphate, six to twelve inches thick, that forms the bottom of a number of streams. It is especially rich in the Beaufort, Stono, and Ashley rivers. Sometimes there are two strata of phosphate, with a thick layer of mud or clay between. This phosphate, you understand, is almost wholly composed of organic remains—the bones, flesh and casts of nobody knows how many animals. Whether this was a big feeding ground of theirs, whether they were mired in swamps there, whether—well, the fact is, nobody knows how they came there. The phosphate, when it comes out of the river, is a gray, porous, water-worn rock, and looks like rotten sandstone. The smell of it is vile, but the worse it smells the richer it is.

"That drop grapple has pointed blades. It weighs fourteen tons, and when it is dropped on the river bottom it knocks a hole in the layer of phosphate. Then a 150-horse power engine puckers it up so that it takes a globular shape, the blades folding up together and holding the phosphate that it has loosened. It is raised, swung over a boat, and emptied into the boat. There the phosphate is washed, to take out the sand, and it is sometimes loaded aboard ship, chiefly for export to England, but it is more commonly turned into a crusher that takes a rock as large as your body and bites it up into pieces not much bigger than your fist. It is washed again and dried, and then it is ready for shipping. It is sold chiefly as a fertilizer, but it is also sold to chemists, who extract phosphoric acid from it for dye stuffs and things like that. The phosphate miners pay to the state of South Carolina a royalty of $1 a ton—not for every ton dug, but for every one shipped—but they are not getting poor for all that; and as to South Carolina, there's a nice little plum—$500,000 a year—falling into her mouth without raising a finger to pick it. The only machinery that will pull that stuff out of the water is made in this country. One company spent $95,000 for a Clyde-made dredge, but when I was down there a crew of Scotch sailors were packing it into the hold of an English steamer to take back. American machinery does it, my boy, every time."

No Charity Mantle Large Enough.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Mr. Beecher has revised his early opinions in regard to the use of tobacco. He doesn't believe anything is gained by a wholesale denunciation of tobacco, but he urges young men not to form the habit of using it. "I am not saying," said he, "that tobacco will lead to rum, and rum to shoot. It isn't a good thing, especially for the young. They don't need it. If you do smoke, or if you choose to smoke later in life, I have no maledictions, but see to it that the practice shall take on as little that is offensive as possible. Man may be justified in smoking, but charity hasn't got a mantle that is broad enough to cover a man who uses bad tobacco."

The Best Scheme Yet.

[Somerville Journal.]

Young married couples off on their wedding tours have in times past devised a good many able schemes to conceal from fellow-travelers how recent their happiness was; but none that we ever heard of equaled in inventive genius the young pair from Somerville who borrowed a 3-year-old boy from a neighbor to take along with them to avoid suspicion.

To say of him that he gratifies the cravings of appetite would be genuine satire. He only appeases them. Is relief attainable? Certainly, and by the use of a pleasant as well as thorough remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Will it cure immediately? Certainly not—it does not effect miracles.
